Ruling in Effect Spring Session

Personnel Deans Issue Statement

Text of the letter from the Dean of Students Office to the Spartan Daily Office in regard to the new policy is as follows:

Editor, Spartan Daily: The personnel deans have been studying the activity and extra curricular program and have concluded that there is a general feeling among students, faculty members and advisers to student organizations that demands made on students' time by these extra functions are seriously encroaching upon time which should be reserved for study.

San Jose State personnel deans handed down a proclamation of dubious strength yesterday in the form of a memorandum to the Spartan Daily stating that all school night social functions must terminate before 8 p.m.

The curtailment of SJS student life will go into effect next semester beginning February, 1956.

Following research and study, the deans have concluded that students do not have enough study time now and feel that such a curfew has been made necessary in order to "bring about a better balance between purely social events, studies and other extracurricular activities."

"It should leave more time for attention to the purposes of a good college," explained Miss Helen Dimmick, associate dean of students.

In answer to Spartan Daily queries as to where the social line is to be drawn, Dr. Stanley C. Benz, dean of students, said, "A dance, a dinner exchange, or coffee party between living groups is obviously a social function, whereas business meetings of organizations and functions at which cultural, educational, or academic matters are considered would not be considered primarily social in nature."

Who will prosecute? "This is a matter of administrative policy and will be disciplined as such." Offending groups will be punished by either the personnel deans as a whole or by individual deans. Penalties which could be levied were not mentioned.

Where will the business-social borderline be drawn? "Borderline cases such as a combination business meeting preceded or followed by a dance or other social activity will need to be decided upon by the personnel deans as the cases arise," ruled the deans.

The move may hamper the actions of such activities as exchanges, Revellers, Greek Show practices, and similar large-scale student operations.

Dean Benz added, "Student groups such as fraternities, sororities, departmental organizations and ASB committees will not be deprived of their meetings, but social functions of these groups must be confined to Friday and Saturday nights if they are to continue beyond 8 o'clock in the evening."

Dean Dimmick explained, "For nearly a year there has been much discussion about the increasing number of activities. The possible means to alleviate this situation have been discussed."

Budget Still Needs Legislature Approval

Fifty-nine new teachers will be added to the San Jose State College faculty next September if the 1956-57 college budget is approved by the Legislature, President John T. Wahlquist announced yesterday. In a telephone message from Sacramento to college officials, he listed substantial budgetary gains for the college following negotiations with officials of the State Departments of Education and Finance.

Agreed upon Monday, Dr. Wahlquist said, are the addition of 59 full-time equivalent instructors plus an additional 2.4 full-time positions for division chairmen. This will give the college a total of 476.9 full-time equivalent teachers, as compared with 417.9 at the present time. The budget, if approved, will also provide 16 additional positions for two equipment technicians, three stock clerks and other clerical help primarily for service to the instructors.

Commenting on the proposed addition of new teachers, Dr. Wahlquist said that the increase represents a ratio of 60 new instructors for 700 additional full-time equivalent students as compared with 90 full-time faculty members added in 1955 for 2,100 additional full-time equivalent students.

NO LONGER SQUEEZE
"I believe that the State Departments of Education and Finance recognize now that we can no longer squeeze."

Service Fraternity To Have Car Pool

Members of Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, again are conducting a car pool which goes into effect today and will last through Friday in front of Morris Dailey Auditorium.

The car pool is a service to students who need rides home for Christmas and those that have rides to offer. It enables many students to travel home for the Christmas season at much greater reduction in cost than other means of travel.

Persons planning to drive to their homes for the holiday and wishing additional riders should fill out one of the cards on the rack outside the auditorium. Those seeking rides also must fill out one of the cards.

The A Phi Os are conducting a survey to study the effect of the car pool and asks all those persons who get rides or riders to leave a note in the Student Union mail box under "A" so that they may keep a record. This service has been a great success in the past and is one of many such services of the fraternity.

Library Vacation Hours

The library schedule will be changed during the coming Christmas vacation, according to Miss Joyce Backus, head librarian.

The hours the library will be open are as follows:
Saturday, Dec. 17, 9 a.m.-5 p.m.
Monday, Dec. 19 to Monday, Dec. 26 the library will be closed.
Tuesday, Dec. 27 until Friday, Dec. 30 it will be opened from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The reading rooms will be closed from 12 noon until 1 p.m. on those days, however.

From Saturday, Dec. 31 until Monday, Jan. 2, 1956, the library will again be closed.

Last Day To Buy 'Key' in Outer Quad

Today is the last day that the Sparta Key will be on sale in the Outer Quad, according to Jerry McCarthy, chairman of the Public Relations Committee.

McCarthy stated that the sale of the magazine has not been going as well as might have been expected. We still have quite a few copies of the student directory left and these will go into the Student Affairs Business Office if not sold today.

Included in this year's directory are the names, addresses, and phone numbers of the student body officers, the administration, emergency and campus phone numbers as well as the names, addresses and phone numbers of the general student body, faculty, sororities, fraternities, and major living groups. The price of this year's booklet is 50 cents.

"For Christmas card lists and just general information the Sparta Key is a handy book to have around," added McCarthy. "And don't depend on borrowing someone else's copy of the book, they just might not be around when you wanted it."

Cordelia Hall Wins AWS Annual Door Decoration Contest

Cordelia Hall, 191 S. 10th St., won first prize in AWS annual door decoration contest. Marjorie Hall and Gamma Phi Beta won second and third places, respectively.

Hodberg Hall, Delta Zeta and Melody Hall received honorable mentions, according to Ann Dutton, president of AWS.

Cordelia Hall will receive the perpetual trophy with the Hall's name engraved on it. This trophy resides with the winner one year. Next year it will go to the 1956 winner.

In addition to this, first, second and third place winners will get a trophy which they may keep permanently.

Cordelia Hall's decoration was an angel made out of a sheet and spun glass. It gave a three dimensional effect, Miss Dutton stated.

Judges were Alden Smith, assistant professor of speech; John DeVincenzi, instructor in art and Mrs. Jeanine Wortman, assistant activities officer. Ann Hudeelson was chairman of the contest.

Professors Smith, Fallico Make Final Plans for Tomorrow's Big Debate

BY PETER MECKEL

Interest continued to mount for tomorrow night's debate of the year between Dr. Arturo Fallico, professor of philosophy, and Dr. Ralph Smith, head of the Engineering Department.

The two battling professors will discuss the pressing problem "Should we have a Moratorium on Technological pursuits to permit greater emphasis on Humanistic Studies?" Morris Dailey Auditorium will be the scene, and 7:30 o'clock will be the time for the "word war."

The debate was originally slated for the Concert Hall of the Music Building, but was switched to Morris Dailey when it became evident the 600 seats in the Concert Hall were not enough to house the interested crowd.

Executive Dean C. Grant Burton will moderate the debate. Both Dr. Fallico and Dr. Smith will speak for 15 minutes with the former taking an affirmative stand on the topic and the latter upholding the negative position. A five minute rebuttal period will follow, and then the debate will be thrown open to questions from the floor.

The two professors have been making final preparations for their debate and have thrown a curtain of silence around their plans for the debate.

Last week the pair hurled charges and abuses at each other, but both have been silent to all queries from Spartan Daily reporters on the subject matter for their talks. Both have a "wait and see" attitude.

An interesting feature of this

By-Laws Change On Council Agenda

The proposed change in the Student Body by-laws concerning Student Activities Board and Activities Evaluation Committee membership will be the main item under consideration by the Student Council at its meeting this afternoon at 2:30 in the Student Union.

The changes, suggested by Ray Freeman, ASB vice-president, would limit SAB to five members and up the membership of AEC to 13.

A cutting down of the functions of SAB and increased duties of AEC brought about the changes, according to Freeman.

Dr. Alvera Lectures on 'Italy Today'

Dr. Pierluigi Alvera, Italian consul-general to San Francisco, is speaking this morning at 10:30 o'clock. His lecture, scheduled for the Music Concert Hall, is on "Italy Today."

Radio Club Will Send Free Radiograms For SJS Students and Faculty Members

Free Radiograms will be sent for SJS students and faculty, starting tonight, from the Amateur Radio Club's Station W6YL located in the Engineering Building, according to Irvin Beebe, club president. The free service has been started this week to allow students and faculty to send messages home before the holidays.

Blanks for the free Radiogram service are available in the Engineering Building office, according to Beebe. He stressed that messages can be sent from the local station to any point on the globe.

"All the student must do is drop in the Engineering Office, write his message and give the name, phone number and address of the message receiver. We'll see to it the message gets through," emphasized Beebe.

NET HOOKUP

The SJS Amateur Radio Club has had Station W6YL on the air since the early part of this semester. However, they could not offer the free message service until they joined a "net organization." The net hookup allows them to relay message traffic to ham operators throughout the world.

Bill Hightower, senior electrical engineering major, has contacted numerous stations so far this year. California ham stations have been contacted in the cities of Los Angeles, South Gate, Santa Ana, Fresno, and Pomona. Western area contacts include ham in Oregon and Reno, Nev.

On the long distance calls, the transmitter in the Engineering Building has reached out to Brownwood, Texas and Lima, Peru. Club leader Beebe stated he thought he had reached Station KX6B in the Marshall Islands yesterday. However, he added, "I couldn't hear for sure."

GLASS ROOM

The SJS Amateur radiomen have their station located in a glass-enclosed room behind one of the study halls in the Engineering Building. Hightower explained that the transmitter used by the club is a Johnson Viking Ranger which operates at a power input of 65 watts. The receiver is a Humarlund Super-Pro 400-X and the roof antenna is a 75 meter dipole type.

Hightower commented that, "The Amateur Radio Club members feel they are offering SJS students a valuable year-round service, free of charge."

Colorful Decorations, Authentic Spanish Pinata Featured for 'Santa's Hideaway'

Colorful decorations and yuletide cheer will be found in the Women's Gym tonight, as Co-Rec sponsors their Christmas party. The social is slated to start at 7:30 o'clock according to Jerry Moore, publicity chairman.

"Santa's Hideaway" is the theme the organization is featuring this year. The party will be climaxed by an authentic Spanish pinata. This Spanish custom will be explained to the group by M. V. Madison.

Following the breaking of the pinata, a Christmas treasure hunt will be held. The hunt will be led by Jo Rae Turner. Other activities on the agenda include dancing, games and mixers.

Toward the end of the evenings activities, Christmas caroling will take place. This traditional feature will be led by Sally Maramont.

The game of "Spooncrisms" will be introduced to the group by Jody Crouch, co-chairman of Co-Rec. The game is being kept a secret until the party tonight.

Tonight's Christmas party is open to all student body card holders. Refreshments of cider and

Assistant Yell Leader Tryouts Will Be Held Tonight in Center Hall

Assistant yell leader tryouts will be held tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the downstairs auditorium of the Catholic Women's Center, according to Jim Cottrell, Rally Committee chairman.

Prospective yell leaders can reach the auditorium by entering the Fifth street door and turning right at the end of the hall. Members of the Rally Committee and Student Council will judge the event.

Tryouts were originally scheduled to be held in Morris Dailey Auditorium but the place was rescheduled because of a conflict.

Hawaiian Party Held Tonight

Carols and Dances Featured With The 'King's Serenade'

"The King's Serenade" will be the theme of the Hawaiian Club's second annual Christmas Show to be presented at 8 o'clock tonight in Morris Dailey Auditorium.

Cast for the show will be made up from membership in the club, which is an organization for students from the Islands.

The show will feature Christmas carols to be sung with both English and Hawaiian lyrics and many songs and dances native to the Islands.

Dancing the hula numbers will be Heather Ray, Rennee Fernandes, Flo Kuanoo and Marlene Victorino. Miss Roy will present a dance number called "Singing Bamboo" and will be assisted by the remainder of the hula cast.

Barbie Mahany is scheduled to present her comic interpretation of "Lovely Hula Hands."

Keola Beamer, last year's master of ceremonies, has consented to be M.C. again.

The event was originally scheduled for Thursday night, but because of the Fallico-Smith debate, it has been moved back one day.

Admission is free but a collection will be taken with the proceeds going to the Christmas Seal Drive.

APPEARING IN THE HAWAIIAN Club's Christmas Show are Marlene Victorino, left, and Pat Hopkins. They will be featured in the show which gets underway tonight at 8 o'clock in Morris Dailey.

Christmas or Xmas?

Christmas is coming! And with it, the long-awaited vacation. One can tell that the holiday is near from the Christmas songs floating through the air both on campus and downtown, from the decorations strung above the streets, from the shove of hurried shoppers "beating the last minute rush."

The advertisements blast out that only so many shopping days are left, people dig a little farther down in their pockets, and the post office is flooded with letters to Santa Claus.

Back in the dark recesses of the mind, however, lurks a suspicion that perhaps there is something else to Christmas besides no down payment and Christmas Eve brew. In Santa Claus himself, this "something" can be found, as well as in the church of your choice. For this grand old man of Christmas is much more than the symbol of commercialism. He is a symbol of the spirit of giving—usually for the pleasure of it, of the trust and faith of the child.

Even so, Old Saint Nick can't take the place of the reason for Christmas. Although he seems to ride to the forefront of our minds behind his jingling reindeer, behind all of that is the memory of a time—long ago—when no decorations, no Santa Claus, no carols broadcast over the loud speakers, were necessary to convey the spirit of Christmas.

Morris Dailey Is Scene

week's activity between the two professors has been Dr. Smith's attempt to play the role of the underdog in the debate.

Dr. Smith said, "I have been warned against appearing on the stand opposing such a skilled and eloquent speaker as Dr. Fallico. I am sure a poor technician stands little chance against Dr. Fallico's oratory. However, we in science and engineering must oppose as best we can such absurd suggestions as those of Dr. Fallico's."

Dr. Fallico was quick to agree that "on the point of view of issues" Dr. Smith would be a definite underdog. As to his own part in the debate Dr. Fallico reported he was "not sure I can do justice to the magnitude of the issue on my side."

'Technology Has Enslaved Man,' States Professor Arturo Fallico

By JOHN KEPLINGER

As a philosopher Dr. Arturo B. Fallico feels quite strongly about the related positions of philosophy and technology in our modern society.

"Technology has its place," he believes, but he feels it has gotten out of hand. "It has enslaved man rather than preserved its proper value as a means."

NOTHING BUT TURMOIL, WAR
Dr. Fallico decided to study and teach philosophy when he realized that, "This generation has known nothing but a world of turmit greater emphasis of Humanistic Studies?"

The distinguished professor completed his under-graduate work in Europe. He received his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees in philosophy from Northwestern University in 1938 and 1940 respectively. He taught and was head of the Philosophy Department at Chicago Teachers College.

Dr. Fallico also has taught at Stanford University, University of Southern California, Wilson College, Philosophy Institute at Lake Tahoe and Golden Gate College. He came to SJS in 1948.

REGULAR CONTRIBUTOR
The philosopher has contributed many articles to both American and European journals. He is vice-president and a regular contributor to the Library of Living Philosophers.

Last year Dr. Fallico was honored with a Ford Foundation Fellowship. During his leave of absence, he studied the relation of philosophy to general education.

On the side, Dr. Fallico is a professional artist and sculpturer. He still conducts classes in sculpturing in Saratoga.

While studying in Europe, Dr. Fallico followed a custom there by being sort of a vagabond; studying under the tutelage of several distinguished philosophers.

One of his outstanding experiences was studying under the great historian and philosopher, Benedetto Croce. Croce, he relates, kept the torch of freedom alive when Italy was under Fascist domination.

REACHED NEW VIEWPOINT
Croce was very inspiring and his influence was felt very strongly by Dr. Fallico. But after having direct experience with and having reflected upon the "sad state of world civilization; the neglect of man for himself"; Dr. Fallico reached a new viewpoint.

As of now his ideas lie along these lines:
"Despite talk to the contrary, the individual and his values have declined. The individual," he believes, "has suffered a gradual loss of a kind of dignity and authenticity associated with independent thought and responsible choice due to the invasion of the 'Impersonal.'"

These things and more have longer "squeeze the additional students into the presently organized classes," Dr. Wahlquist said. "We must, of necessity, organize new classes—laboratory, activity and lecture; we must have more books, more counselors, more clerical assistance, and more instructional equipment."

They also recognize that our institution is becoming predominantly upper division and graduate, and that we must, therefore, have a lower-teacher-student ratio for those types of classes."

Dr. Wahlquist also announced that the services of an administrative assistant will be available, effective Jan. 1, 1956. No choice has been made as to who will be named to this new post.

The budget now under consideration in Sacramento includes $60,000 for instructional equipment and $35,000 for books.

NEW POSITIONS
New positions provided in the new budget include:
Health Services: Physician (1/2 time), Nurse (1/2 time), clerk (1/2 time).

Personnel Office: Testing Officer (1/2 time) (giving the college a full-time testing officer); two counselors, 1/2 clerks of various grades.

Dr. Wahlquist spent yesterday morning discussing with state officials the problems of the expansion of the campus and the enlargement of the stadium. In the afternoon he and Executive Dean C. Grant Burton met with the Division of Architecture on the building program.

Little Boy Asks College Professors Age Old Question About 'Sandy Claus'

A heavy fog covered the campus. Carols filtered through from a nearby church as Angelica, the clock on city hall, struck eight.

In the dim glare of a solitary streetlight, the fog grasped trees and shrubs. Only a small boy was visible.

He stood, not much taller than the lamp's base, and viewed the college buildings. The yellowed glow of lights pointed to where the few instructors were finishing their last hour's work.

It was Christmas Eve. In one office a professor flipped a slide-rule off-handedly as he checked a math problem. Holding the rule arm's distance, as if his glasses were ill-ground for his work, he plotted a few figures on his scratch pad and slumped back in his chair.

He took off his glasses and rubbed the place on his nose where they had rested. Straightening up, he was starting to grade another paper as the door opened.

It was only the little boy.

"Yes," said the Professor of Mathematics in a still surprised tone of voice. "Yes, what is it?"

"Is there a Sandy Claus?" It came in one breath. The boy's cheeks were red from the cold outside.

His maroon scarf, neatly tucked into his knee-length brown coat, made them seem even redder. He was wearing a red cap with a white lamb's-wool band on the rim.

"Is there a Sandy Claus?" He thought the man hadn't understood.

Santa Claus? Santa Claus indeed.

The professor reached for the rule as the boy moved closer, leaving damp shoe-marks.

"Santa Claus? Well, let's see."

"For instance Santa, as I recall, travels by sleigh."

The professor moved his feet from under the desk and crossed his legs.

"Now sonny, it is highly probable that, considering the area of the runners applied to the obstructing surface, or plane, upon which it travels, that the friction created by the movement of such a primitive device would make it almost impossible for it to move efficiently."

He turned toward his desk.

"For instance, the formula . . . look here, boy . . ."

The lad stepped closer to see the mystic marks the wise professor was putting on a scratch pad.

"So you see son, Santa's sleigh just couldn't be pulled on the ground without snow. And we haven't any snow."

Self-satisfied, the Professor of Mathematics looked at the boy, whose mittened hands were clenched at his sides.

"But Santa flies," the boy said, and left.

The hall was dark. Steam hissing through the radiators sounded like slithering serpents as the boy hurried to the next lighted office.

He stood before the door, and, as if he had knocked, it opened.

The Professor of Psychology was about to switch off the light and leave.

"Won't you come in," the man said, after a moment's hesitation.

The boy followed him into the office. Putting his leather briefcase on the floor, the professor moved to his swivel chair.

"ISTHEREASANDYCLAUS?" the boy blurted.

Caught off guard by the question, the professor leaned back.

"How's that?" he said, looking at the pitted and mottled maroon scarf.

"Is there a Sandy Claus?" the boy repeated his question, distinctly.

"My boy," the wise man said, "Santa Claus" was created by man to satisfy an inner hunger. He, Santa Claus, that is—gives the individual a feeling that there is something good in the world and thereby satisfies a definite need within millions of people, especially the younger folk. No, he isn't actually a person. He's only a figment of imagination . . ."

Lips pressed together and brows furrowed, the boy's eyes questioned him.

"That is to say, he's make believe—sort of 'let's pretend.'"

"But I saw him," the boy said quietly, turned, and was gone.

The boy moved toward the lighted door at the very end of the long hall, glanced at the strange words on the door and knocked three times with mitten-covered knuckles.

After a few moments he turned the knob and looked in.

A round shouldered man with greying hair leaned over a small booklet.

The Professor of History looked up.

"Is there a Sandy Claus?" the boy spoke clearly and quietly.

Reflecting for a moment, the man turned and looked at the boy.

"History definitely shows that there was a Santa Claus. Only that wasn't exactly his name—and he died a long, long time ago."

The professor fidgeted as the boy turned and walked out and closed the door. In a moment the instructor opened the door and watched as the little figure moved toward the exit.

The fog still hung on the trees and shrubs and the boy walked slowly toward the street lamp.

The boy didn't count the bongs as the clock struck the quarter hour.

"Merry Christmas, sonny." It was a tall man, who appeared suddenly from the mist. Startled, the boy was silent for a moment, until he managed . . .

"Merry Christmas, Mr. . . . and—a very Happy New Year," the boy shouted at the retreating gentleman.

By the light of the solitary streetlamp, the white lamb's wool on the boy's cap appeared luminous—almost like a halo. A melody from a group of carolers broke through the fog . . . "Praise God to the Highest . . ."

The solitary lamp continued to cast off its light. The fog remained motionless.

The little boy was gone.

Shopping Will Getcha Ya If Ya Don't Watch Out!

NEW YORK.—(UP)—Only eight more shopping days till Christmas—and they'll getcha if ya don't watch out.

Here are some helpful shopping hints on how to parry the perils of aching-arch alley, listed in convenient index form.

Clerks—How to attract their attention: Be polite, but be prepared. If at first the clerk doesn't notice you, don't stand there glowering and muttering. Remember the Christmas spirit. Look pleasant. Relax. Then when, at last, the salesgirl says "Who's next, please!" Pull out a moose horn, sound a blast in her ear, and say softly, "Why, I am."

Crowded Counters—How to reach them: Don't try to elbow your way in. You'll never make it. Bring your own neighborhood team, with a husky line and fast backfield. The split-T is an excellent lineup to use. With practice, you can open a quick hole through a solid mob five-deep. Make a purchase, and get away to attack another counter. Teamwork does it.

Elevators—How they run: Blue-moon schedule. Use the stairs.

Gifts—How to choose them: Use a ouija board.

Money—How to spend it: The best method is the straightforward, honest one. Bargain in and spend what cash you have. Then charge things up to the store's limit. Then kite a few checks.

Then get a floor plan of the store and commit to memory just where on each floor are the other things you want; this is for working stealthily in the dark. Use a burglar's jimmy to let yourself in at night. Start at the top floor and work your way down.

Original—How to be: Your friends will expect you to give them something different. And so will your cousins and your sisters and your aunts. This year, buy mustache cups for all the men on your list, and hand-cranked milk churns for the women.

Packages—How to get on the bus with them: Bring along a friend with a huge shoe horn. He can load you on with that, plus main force.

Smiling—How to keep on: Buy a face mask. Paint a grin on it.

West Point Graduate Works for M.A. As Six Children Complete Education

By DORA HANSEN

"You're never too old to learn," believes George Edmond Weeks Young, 57-year-old graduate student at State.

Young, a retired colonel, is rather a special student because he was graduated from West Point, served 31 years in the Army, and is working for his M.A. degree while six of his eight children are completing their schooling.

Young was born in Baltimore, Md., and received his early schooling in five different states. His father was a traveling contractor. Young attended Georgia Tech for a year and then enlisted in the army. He served in the army for a year during World War I. He received a veterans appointment to the Academy after taking competitive examinations. He was graduated as a Second Lieutenant in 1924. He was retired in 1955 as a Colonel, after serving his country for 31 years.

"I would never advise anyone to choose a definite career. A person must want to do something very badly to be a success in any career," Young answered when he was asked if he would advise anyone to choose the army as a vocation.

Young is quite a family man. He has eight children whose ages range from 5 to 30 years. There are six boys and two girls. One of the sons, James, is a Plebe at Annapolis and another, George, is at West Point. Leonard, the oldest son, is in business in San Francisco, and John is in the service.

The other four children, Mary, Patrick, Lawrence and Susan are still attending public schools. When asked whether the family approved of his going to school, Young said his wife was "glad to get him out of the house."

In choosing San Jose as a place to buy a home, he said he was influenced by the area and by the fact that his wife's brother lived here. He particularly likes the area from Carmel to Oregon.

When asked his opinion of San Jose State, the social science major was very enthusiastic in his answers. He said it was a good school and "you can get so much for so little." He thinks the "instructors, on the whole, are excellent." He hopes to get his master's degree by the end of next summer and then he plans on going to Stanford or Cal to get his Ph.D. in Social Science.

cused in various student groups, faculty groups, and combined student-faculty groups. As enrollments increase, the situation grew worse and finally something had to be done.

The official notice stated, "Since all social functions are to be approved by the Activities Office as heretofore, students in charge of arranging functions are urged to consult the activities officer when making plans. Such planning will tend to eliminate many problem situations."

Dr. Lowell Walter, chief counselor, said, "With the growth of the college and the increasing complexity of student life, it becomes more difficult for students to budget their time. This new policy is a partial attempt to help students solve this problem."

Game-End Rally Sets Up 65-59 Victory After Cold First Half

By JIM EGGERT

The SJS cagers, playing ragged ball and behind almost the entire game, staged a game-end rally to knot the score at the end of regulation time and went on to take a 65-59 overtime victory over San Francisco State last night in Spartan Gym.

Gator center Thatcher Nance tallied on a tip-in with only 15 seconds remaining to make the count 54-54 at the end of the fourth period after Tom Crane had put the Spartans ahead for the first time since the end of the first quarter with a nice drive-in.

After S. F. State went ahead early in the overtime period, Crane, who lead the Spartans with 16 points, almost single handedly beat the Gators.

First he hit two free throws to narrow the Gator lead to 57-56. Then he stole a San Francisco pass and went the length of the court for the tally that put the Spartans ahead to stay. After Gil Egeland hit two charity tosses, Crane scored on another lay-in to make it 62-57.

S.F. State had the game apparently salted away, holding a 50-42 lead with approximately five minutes remaining, and the Spartans anything but dangerous. But then SJS began to operate.

Eddie Diaz hit four straight free throws, and Ray Goodwin hit on a follow-up jump shot to make it 50-48 with 2:55 remaining. After Nance scored for the Gators, Brady hit a jump shot, Egeland did likewise, and the score was tied with 45 seconds left.

Then came Crane's drive-in, and Spartan fans went wild. But Nance delayed things with his tip-in, and it was on to overtime. The Spartans looked ragged in the first half, and S.F. State didn't look much better. However, thanks to their superiority from the free throw line, the Gators enjoyed a 27-20 half-time lead. San Francisco continued its lead in the second half until Diaz' free throws turned the tide.

Crane played an outstanding game as did Fred Niemann once he got going, but most gratifying of all were performances turned in by reserves Egeland, Brady and Schwendinger. Ernie Brownfield turned in a great game for the Gators while scoring 18 points.

In the preliminary game, the SJS junior varsity, paced by George Wagner's 17 points defeated the S.F. State J.V.s, 84-60.

$100 Award For Artists

The National League of American Penwomen is offering a $100 cash scholarship to an outstanding art student from San Jose State College.

Members of the art faculty can submit recommendations but a faculty committee will make the actual selection. Since the scholarship is given to encourage young talent, talent is the basis for judging.

The annual scholarship is offered alternately for letters, music and art. This is the fourth Penwomen scholarship that the Santa Clara County branch has offered to a San Jose State student.

The scholarship will be presented to the outstanding student at the Jan. 7 meeting of the local branch. The national professional league is open only to women who have sold something as a result of their own work according to Mrs. Nadine Hammond. This work must be a continual process and membership is invitational.

Both Mrs. Hammond, art instructor, and Dr. Dorothy Kaucher, professor of speech, are members of the local chapter.

Soph in Bus Accident

Joan Whisnand, SJS sophomore, was involved in a bus accident Monday evening while returning home from work in San Francisco. Miss Whisnand was a passenger in a bus which went through a red light going south on Folsom Street. The bus crashed into an auto and then veered to the left and hit a tree.

Tau Delta Phi Holds Discussion Tonight

Tau Delta Phi, men's honorary scholastic fraternity, will hold a summary session of its series of talks on education at its meeting at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the Tower, according to Bob Hipkins, grand magistrate.

Dr. Arturo B. Fallico, professor of philosophy; Dr. John T. Wahlquist, SJS president; Dr. Albert J. Castro, assistant professor of chemistry; and Dr. Richard G. Tansey, associate professor of art, have given talks on various problems in modern education in Tau Delta Phi's speech series.

Tonight the problems that were brought up during the talks will be discussed among the members and speakers.

Two Profs Turn Out Book on Government

Two SJS social science professors have turned out a book to aid the student in studying California government. Dr. S. Laird Swager and Dr. Burton R. Brazil are the authors of "A Citizen's Guide To California Government."

The 150-page paper-covered book explains the operation of the California government from the standpoint of the average individual who pays for its operation. It focuses on responsible citizenship and uses as illustrations the contacts a citizen will have with the government.

The book is intended to be used in meeting the state requirements, with reference to the Constitution and California government. It is sized and priced so that it may easily be used in conjunction with any standard American government textbook.

The book is published by Fearon Publishers of San Francisco.

Technician Victor Corey To Speak at IRE Meet Tonight in Room E118

Dr. Victor B. Corey, technical director of the Dohner Scientific Company, will be special guest speaker of the SJS Institute of Radio Engineers at their meeting tonight at 7:30 o'clock in E-118, according to Al Hall, chairman. Dr. Corey will speak on "The Beginning Beyond Commencement."

Hall stressed that the meeting is open to all interested science and engineering students. Dr. Corey will discuss the field of engineering in industry as it applies to newly graduated engineers. The purpose of the talk is to help students make the most of their remaining formal training and to help them develop perspective for choices and plans in their future.

Dr. Corey is affiliated with the IRE professional group in Berkeley, where he is acting chairman on engineering management. Since 1945, he has been in engineering management positions with Cornell Aeronautical Laboratories, Frederic Plader, Inc., and Willys Overland Motors, Inc.

Police Searching for 'Desperate' Bank Robber

San Francisco, Calif., Dec. 13.—(UP)—Police were on the lookout today for a bank robber who, apparently, hardly makes expenses. The thief broke into a downtown branch of the American Trust Co. over the weekend and escaped with $3.

Once more man celebrates the birth of the Christ child: ... "And Joseph also went from Galilee ... to the town of David ... called Bethlehem—because he was of the ... family of David—to register, together with Mary, his wife, who was with child. And ... while they were there, the days for her to be delivered were fulfilled. And she brought forth her first-born son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the inn."
